Country house

In the Middle Ages, peasants lived in humble dwellings. Thatched roofs covered these houses, built with wood or dried mud, which often had only one badly-lit room with small paneless windows to be closed using wood shutters. Nowadays, countryside inhabitants own big lively houses surrounded by nature, fields from all sides and purity filling the air. It's a little corner of paradise where living is a blessing. Majestic, lightened up by several windows and having spacious balconies, and a fireplace in the heart, we give you this model of a countryside dream house.

Maison de campagne

Au Moyen Âge, les paysans habitaient de modestes demeures. Construites en bois ou en boue séchée, les maisons étaient couvertes d'un toit de chaume et souvent dotées d'une seule pièce, mal éclairée par de petites fenêtres sans vitres se fermant par des volets de bois. Aujourd'hui, les habitants de la campagne sont choqués par de grandes maisons conviviales entourées de nature abondante, de champs à perte de vue et d'air pur. Un petit coin de paradis où il fait bon vivre. Majestueuse, éclairée par de nombreuses fenêtres, dotée de grandes galeries extérieures, dont le cœur possède un foyer, voici un exemple d'une maison de campagne de rêve!
